7th Annual ITA-ASIL Conference: Arbitration: The End of the Golden Age?

March 24, 2010 – Washington, D.C.

Conference Co-Chairs: Prof. Peter B. Rutledge, University of Georgia Law School, Athens Edna Sussman, SussmanADR LLC, Scarsdale

The conference this year explores whether a golden age is ending for arbitration or whether the evolution of arbitration and arbitration practice will lead to welcome improvements. In a format specially designed to encourage audience participation, the program will be limited to two panels. One will address the challenges to international arbitration, focusing especially on recent developments relating to BITs. The other will address proposed reforms to domestic arbitration in the United States, focusing especially on how those proposals might affect the international field as well. As with prior years, both panels will feature a mix of arbitrators, in-house counsels, and practitioners. In addition, given the importance of legislation to these questions, policymakers will also join the discussion.

About The Institute for Transnational Arbitration (ITA)

A division of the Center for American and International Law, the Institute for Transnational Arbitration provides advanced, continuing education for lawyers, judges and other professionals concerned with transnational arbitration of commercial and investment disputes. Through its programs, scholarly publications and membership activities, ITA has become an important global forum on contemporary issues in the field of transnational arbitration. The Institute's record of educational achievements has been aided by the support of many of the world's leading companies, lawyers and arbitration professionals.

About The American Society of International Law (ASIL)

ASIL was established in 1906. While our educational mission remains as central today as it was then, our programs have adapted to dramatic changes in international law, as both an expansive topic and an evolving professional discipline. The Society celebrated its Centennial in 2006 under the theme, "A Just World Under Law." Through our meetings, publications, information services and outreach programs, ASIL advances international law scholarship and education for international law professionals as well as for broader policy-making audiences and the public. ASIL is a nonprofit, nonpartisan, educational membership organization founded in 1906 and chartered by Congress in 1950. ASIL holds Category II Consultative Status to the Economic and Social Council of the United Nations and is a constituent society of the American Council of Learned Societies. The Society is headquartered at Tillar House in Washington, D.C.
