1	I don't recommend taking Prof. Love for T&E unless you have a really solid outline going into the class. She is very obtuse in her teaching, jumps around all over the place, and expects you to connect all the dots on your own. She's kinda quirky, but most days everyone left class really frustrated because she always muddled things up so much. Oh and she basically starts class in the middle of her sentence where she left out the last class so that was pretty confusing as well.	Feb 20, 2012 2:48 PM
2	Love is an interesting lady. She knows a lot about the subject but can get sidetracked and/or completely forget about sentence structure in a way that means she goes for several minutes without asking an actual question or expressing a complete thought. Regardless, she's a cool broad. Her exam is CLOSED BOOK completely and all essays. Difficult but doable.	Feb 14, 2012 7:43 PM
3	I feel I learned a good bit in the class, but mostly from our reading assignments. There were many days that I felt the class time was an utter waste - we could have moved on to something new, and not rehash the same thing over and over.	Feb 13, 2012 9:59 AM
4	If you are interested in Trusts & Estates, you want to take Love. But, if you're not, then you may be a little bored.	Feb 12, 2012 11:28 PM
5	Professor Love is super knowledgeable about trusts and estates, but sometimes hard to follow. Her exam is closed-book, so you will need to memorize relevant portions of the UPC and GA Code. However, her exam is very fair, so just make sure to start making flash cards earlier in the semester.	Feb 8, 2012 2:45 PM
6	I took this class only because I needed to add a class to my schedule, but I ended up really liking it. Love is really nice, and you end up learning a lot of useful and interesting information about wills.	Feb 6, 2012 7:58 PM
7	Prof. Love knows everything. She's awesome. Occasionally she went a little fast so at times it was a little difficult to keep up, but generally the material was presented in a straight-forward, clear-cut manner. Knowing the basics of T&E is definitely worth taking this class. Also, unlike other T&E professors, Love hates math, so there is virtually no math in class and none on the exam (even if there is some, it's really simple with round numbers). It's a closed-book exam, which is a bit of a bummer, but the exam is pretty much a survey of the course with only some nitty-gritty concepts getting covered. You also don't have to memorize any statute numbers. You just have to know what would happen in certain situations under the common law vs. under the UPC vs. under Georgia law. I love Love. 8	Love is great but her exam is terrible! She does not allow you to use an outline and expects you to know all of the differences between the Georgia statutes and the Uniform Probate Code.	Feb 6, 2012 3:29 PM
9	This was the worst class I took in law school. I couldn't follow her in class at all and she was condescending when people didn't know the answers. The book was also terrible and hard to follow. I would tell anyone considering this class, STAY AWAY. It was terrible and I didn't learn a thing.	Feb 6, 2012 3:18 PM
10	Love was the worst professor I've had in law school. She chose favorites and was bitter to other students. The book was awful and she moved through the	Feb 6, 2012 7:10 AM
