| 3 | Grades based on a combination of attendance, weekly work reports, and a multiple choice final exam | Feb 20, 2012 4:06 PM |
| 4 | This is a more time consuming course than I think I originally had anticipated. You spend 3 hours per credit hour a week (so if you're taking 3 hours, 9 hours per week) in whatever office you're assigned to. The assignment process is pretty fair. You also write a weekly journal entry and spend 2 hours in class each Monday night. Previously, Cook had been in the practice of letting us out early on Monday nights but recently we have taken up the whole time. His powerpoint presentations are useful but sometimes very dry and many people spend the bulk of the class doing things on the internet. The exam is entirely T/F and it's pass fail. You are evaluated mostly based on your weekly reports. If you hope to be a prosecutor, definitely take this class. If you want time in court, definitely take this class. Also, Cook is probably the nicest guy on the planet. If he need help with anything, he is always makes himself available and approachable. | Feb 14, 2012 7:49 PM |
| 5 | Grades based on one approx. 120 question multiple choice exam. Every single answer on the exam comes straight from extensive powerpoint class presentations and lecture. No socratic whatsoever. Take copious notes from the powerpoints, you'll be just fine. Very informative course. The info you learn in class is directly applicable to your clinical hours. | Feb 12, 2012 5:00 PM |
