1	The seminar portion of this class is interesting but not always super-relevant. The projects can be really cool, though. If you want a lot of clients volunteer for the Soup Kitchen project, it always gets a lot of people needing legal help.	Mar 5, 2012 1:33 PM
2	This course demands a lot of time outside of class. You are dealing with local typically destitute clients within the community and so there is pressure to help them with their legal issues in a timely manner, but it is often difficult to meet with Scherr in a timely manner. You also have group work. Scheduling and coordinating time to meet was a large part of this course. I got a good grade, but I had to put in a lot of work and more work than I expected. It is possible to get a good grade (A range) if you work really hard, organize your client files, keep Scherr abreast with all of your work and try to problem solve based on the current law before you meet with him	Mar 4, 2012 6:02 PM
3	very interesting course content. professor very disrespectful of students' time.	Feb 20, 2012 12:43 PM
4	I really didn't like this class very much. I expected much more clinic work emphasis. Even if you think you know how this class stacks up (papers, class), you have to have way more time than I did the first semester of my second year to get any worthwhile client experience out of this one. Also, meeting with Professor Scherr takes a lot of time out of your day, because meetings often get cancelled and moved, almost never on time.	Feb 6, 2012 9:30 AM
